

Photoshop: My Friend Barack (40pts.)

Layers & Selection

Design: Imagine a scene in which you bring together three different images and you layer and blend them in a way that everyone viewing the image feels it is real. The image above is three layers: 1. The background layer with the tree and the view. 2. The middle layer containing President Barak Obama.. 3. The highest layer is the image of all the friends. Realism: It was hard to find a picture of the president in a t-shirt, he is usually in a suit or tux. I found one of him walking on the beach wearing a t-shirt. I took the group photo and selected and removed a gentleman who was approximately the same size as the President. After a few edits (blur), I placed the President into the image.
Step #1: Canvas Set the canvas to 8 inches wide by 6 inches high / 72 dpi / RGB.	5 pts.
Step #2: Find an Image Find an image of a famous individual on the internet. Save it to a folder on your desktop called "MyFamousFriend_YourName".	5 pts.
Step #3: Import to Canvas Import this image to your canvas and remove any background stuff or colors that surround the famous individual.	10 pts.
Step #5: Background Go online and find a realistic backdrop that will appear behind you and your friends (Be realistic, if you are wearing school clothes, you don't want to select a beach scene). Save the image to the folder you created. Import the image to the canvas. Place in the background and resize it so that it fills the entire background. Slightly move and adjust the size of both the background and your group of friends so it looks real.	10 pts.
